Laughter, smiles and colors filled the hall at BASR’s facility as the three clowns danced at the tones of energizing music and juggled the colorful balls with their talented hand. The giggles of the room echoed in the corridors as the clowns did their flips in the air and tumbles on the ground.

BASR continuously works on addressing the psychosocial needs of the children at the hospital. Through those activities that the children, mothers and staff take part in, the children feel less anxious by medical procedures.

Those activities help children forget their illness for a moment and return to a world of fantasy and play. A smile, or a glimmer in the eye, is always a special moment.
Laughter is the best medicine
