Four staff nurses received a total of 120 training hours at the Rafic Hariri School of Nursing at the American University of Beirut.

Among the training topics were: leadership skills, conflict management, development of administrative capacity, communication skills, quality management, intensive care and emergency nursing, the basis of clinical examination, infection control, preliminary assessment, ECG interpretation, strikes patients care, monitoring vital signs, the role of nurse operations, operating room and sterilization methods, infection control.

BASR’s Continuing Education program constantly strives to create training opportunities for its staff to further enhance the quality standards of care provided to beneficiaries.
Four Staff Nurses Receive Training at the American University of Beirut